LISBON, Aug. 5.

THE following is the answer to the King of Portugal's edict, for putting a stop to the obtaining fictitious pretences in prejudice to the legal heirs:

"We, Don Joseph, by the grace of God, king of Portugal and the Algarves, &c. to all those whom the edict shall appertain, greeting. We make known, that we have been informed by our great council, of the irregularities and abuses committed in our state by a number of persons, who introduce themselves into families, and use all artifices to engage the sick to make their wills; by which means most of the testators, being advanced in age, or exhausted by illness, or, more properly speaking, overcome by the persuasions of these crafty deceivers, who act under the cloak of religion and paternal love, are prevailed to make wills, which deprive the legal heirs of their patrimony, and reduce both fathers and children to such misery, that, seeing their inheritance pass into the hands of strangers, they are led to all the disorders suggested by despair. A circumstance still more to be lamented is, that among these birds of prey are found ecclesiastics, who abusing the privileges and sanctions of the church, hasten to assist at the execution of testaments with more ardour, than zeal for the salvation of souls; insomuch that the greater part of these testamentary cupboards, obtained by hypocrisy, are repugnant not only to the church and the ecclesiastical rules and institutions, but the ordinances of several emperors, and even the sentiments of the fathers of the church. Nevertheless these scandalous abuses, in violation of the laws and ordinances of princes, are become but too common to the Catholic states of Europe, and principally in our kingdom, tho' Philip the IVth, at the request of his people, took all possible care to extirpate the abuse, by the execution of a decree, in which one of the chief articles forbad any religious order to obtain the institution of their names in wills, as heirs or legatees, or to accept any legacy in favour of their communities; which prohibition was confirmed by a second of May 1647, in presence of king John, our Great Grandfather.

"Wherefore by the advice of our council, and others of our ministry, as well for the love of religion, as the good of our subjects, whether ecclesiastical or civil, we ordain as follows, &c. ——"

Stockholm, Aug. 15. It is reported that the marriage of the hereditary prince of Sweden with the princess of Denmark, will be celebrated at Copenhagen, on the same day as the marriage of his Danish Majesty with the princess Caroline Matilda of England.

Paris Aug. 29. It is said that the duke of Gloucester, brother to the king of England, was present, incognito, at the review at Compiegne.

Constantinople, Aug. 1. Several of the rebels at Cyprus have been seized and beheaded. Their heads have been sent to him, and exposed at the gate of the seraglio.

Petersburgh, Aug. 15. The foreigners destined for peopling our colonies are assembled in Orenbourg to the number of several thousands, but a distemper prevails among them which carries off some every day, and is so contagious that though Orenbourg is nine werstes distant from Petershof, the empress and the grand duke have thought proper to remove further off, and none of the above mentioned foreigners are suffered to come into this city.

Leghorn, Aug. 19. Letters from Algiers of the 5th inst. advise, that the inhabitants were in the greatest consternation from the apprehension of another revolution; on which account several of the most wealthy people had retired into the country. Their apprehensions were founded upon a formidable conspiracy against the life of the Dey, which was to have been carried into execution the 5th inst. but was happily discovered twenty hours before. Ten of the principal conspirators were taken, six of whom were immediately strangled, and the Dey has promised a pardon to the remaining four upon condition that they discover their accomplices, which however they have not yet done. These advices add, that ten earthquakes have happened within the last six months at Algiers, two of which were very violent.

Rome, Aug. 20. The government being desirous to supply the capital with bread upon reasonable terms, has ordered the bakers to deliver an account of what is necessary for that purpose, and prohibited the disposing of corn to private persons, or to convents, till some arrives from abroad.

Constantinople, Aug. 16. Though the earth had not been without some agitation for many days, the motion was nevertheless very weak, so that we were in hopes it would not have returned; but on the 5th inst. about noon, we had a very great shock, which proved the most violent of any that has happened since that on the 22d of May. It lasted about 40 seconds, in which short space of time it threw down three pretty considerable khans, the gate of Adrianople, and some other buildings. The quarter of St. Matthias near the seven towers suffered greatly; about 30 persons were killed, and upwards of 100 much hurt.

Genoa, Aug. 26. By a ship lately arrived from Bastia we hear, that an accommodation is likely to take place very soon between this republic and the rebels of Corsica, and that two ministers are expected in that island, one from France and the other from England, in order to put the finishing stroke to this treaty, under the mediation of their sovereigns.

Leghorn, August 12. They write from Corsica, that the hon. Mr. Hervey, brother to the earl of Bristol, was landed in that island, and had taken a tour to all the places occupied by the Paolists.

Berne, Aug. 20. The term of the treaty of alliance and friendship between the republic of Venice and that of the Grisons being expired, the government of Venice, so far from intending to renew that treaty, hath issued a decree which orders all the Grisons who are settled in the territories of the republic, to depart before the first of October next.

Paris, Sept. 8. A letter just received from Brest, says that the count d'Estaing, the late governor of Cape Francois, arrived in the road of that port on the 26th of last month. We impatiently long to hear the reception he will meet with from the ministry, and if he will be obliged to deliver in a particular justification in answer to the accusations the French inhabitants of the isle of St. Domingo have made against him.

Paris, Sept. 12. John Paris de Montmartel, Marquis de Brunoy, counsellor of state, died the 10th instant, aged 70.

Paris, Sept. 15. The Sieur Falconet, one of the most eminent sculptors, has been sent for to Petersburgh by the empress of Russia, in order to execute a statue of Peter the Great, which her imperial Majesty proposes to erect in memory of that prince, the founder of the Russian empire.

Naples, Aug. 26. According to the advices the ministry have received from the provinces of this kingdom, the harvest of corn has in some provinces entirely failed, and in others is very small; in consequence of which the government, in order to preserve the people from the evils they suffered for two years past, have forbid the exportation of corn, meal, and dough, on pain of death.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 6.

Saturday general Monkton had a horse sent him from Leith, to Scotland, which measured but 35 inches and a half in height.

SEPTEMBER 11.

The accounts from Florence, of the 12th of August say, that the grand duke, in order to soothe the minds of the people, has published, by an edict, the exemption of all ordinary duties on corn that shall be imported there from abroad.

There are lately published at Milan three edicts; the first orders all those who have any wheat by them to give an account of it to the regency; the second concerns the importation of that article into the Milanese; the third is relative to a convention lately renewed with the court of Turin for the mutual giving up malefactors.

SEPTEMBER 13.

Last week the right hon. the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations adjourned for a month, being the usual recess at this time of the year.

Some letters from Leghorn say, that the senate of Genoa seemed inclinable to acknowledge Pascal de Paoli, in the character of Viceroy of Corsica, provided the malcontents would submit to the terms proposed by France for an accommodation with the republic.

It is said a plan is forming, and will be laid before parliament next session, for erecting magazines for the reception of corn in two or three principal towns of each county in England, to be purchased when grain is cheap, and delivered out [illegible]

SEPTEMBER 15.

By the last letters from Italy we are told, that unlimited orders are come to the merchants in England to buy up all the corn they can get, at any price: This, together with the thinness of the grain, and the long time allowed for exportation, before it can be stopp'd, will probably drain this kingdom of the greatest part of the grain, whereby the poor and middling people will probably be in the greatest distress.—Query, If it would not be for the advantage and relief of the poor of these kingdoms, if the time for the exportation of corn was to be left to the determination of the king and council during the recess, rather than fix it, as the ill consequences of it now will be severely felt by all ranks.

It is thought that soon after the meeting of a great assembly the bounty for the exportation of corn will be entirely abolished.

It is said that the necessity of having triennial parliaments will be strongly enforced in the house of commons next meeting.

By the intended regulation of the Portugal trade, we hear, that between three and four thousand tons of shipping will be employed to Lisbon only, from the river of Thames, more than usual.

They write from Constantinople, that an edict had been published, by order of the Grand Seignor, throughout all the Turkish provinces setting a price upon the head prince Heraclius, and also on those of the chief ring leaders of the rebellions in Egypt, and the isle of Cyprus.

SEPTEMBER 15.

The same unforeseen blasts which happened to the last ministry may happen again, but as far as we can judge, the present ministry seems [illegible] eager than the former. It is not Lord Chatham's temper to depart from his designs, or despair. And we shall see him, when this torrent of abuse has stopped its course, striking some bold strokes, and forming some determined and enterprizing plan.

SEPTEMBER 16.

While the accounts from several of the Italian states inform us, of the great scarcity of corn that threatens them with dismal prospects, and that orders are given to buy it at any price, and especially in England, ought we not to be alarmed at the dismal effects, which, lessening the quantity of bread corn in this kingdom by exportation, will produce, when there is thought hardly to be enough to supply our own inhabitants? Why do not our superiors gather together to consult for the public good!

We are assured, that the present tour of Europe now making by a certain great prince, is entirely from political motives, whatever reasons may be assigned to the contrary.

SEPTEMBER 17.

The last Utrecht Gazette says, "that some Printers, or Editors, of periodical papers, have, it is said, been cited before the Ministry, in order to declare to them the authors of the severe satirical pieces against the Earl of Chatham, who, after having been long the Idol of the people, frees himself now borne down in the most unjust manner, as he has neither changed his sentiments nor conduct towards the nation." These foreign Writers are certainly either set on to instigate the great personage to do an act unworthy of himself, or, bred up in the notions of arbitrary power, they take it for granted, that the noble Earl will do here what would be done in their own domestic governments abroad.

They write from Leghorn, that the King of Sardi-

...his interests himself greatly in the affairs of the Corsicans.

They write from Naples, that the Turkish governor of the Morea, was marched at the head of sixty thousand troops to check the progress of the rebels in Georgia.

By a vessel arrived at Leghorn, from the Levant, there is advice, that the Georgian army, under prince Heraclius, had obtained a victory over the Bashaw of Mingrelia.

We hear that the making the island of Bermuda a free port is under consideration; which place having little or no staple of its own, the inhabitants will be greatly benefited thereby; its midway situation between the Northern colonies and West-India islands rendering it extremely commodious.

We hear that Sir George Pocock, knight of the Bath, has resigned his post as admiral, and all his other places whatever, and is gone abroad.

SEPTEMBER 18.

They write from Gibraltar, that the late earthquakes at Algiers have occasioned several shoals to be cast up in the sea, near that place, which, it was apprehended, would be very prejudicial to navigation.

SEPTEMBER 19.

We are assured, that several ships, belonging to Scarborough, are soon to sail for Philadelphia, in order to import corn.

It is expected that commissions will be sent immediately to South-Carolina, to buy up all the rice that is to be got; as it is very probable there will be a great demand for that useful article this approaching winter.

Grievous are the complaints of the poor in every part of the kingdom, on account of the extravagant price of provisions of all sorts. Every post brings fresh accounts of tumults, occasioned principally by the high price of bread.

SEPTEMBER 20.

They write from Vienna, that the Emperor has lately erected a new professorship in the university there, for teaching the principles of finances, police, and state oeconomy.

We have just been informed, that on tuesday last there was an insurrection of many hundred poor people in the neighbourhood of Gloucester and Cirencester, who have destroyed several mills, and done other great damages among the millers, farmers, cheese-factors, &c. and to such an height has their resentment already risen, on account of the dearness of corn, &c. that, if some proper means are not used, in order to suppress these tumults, it is to be feared very alarming consequences will ensue.

We are informed that Sir George Pococke resigned solely on account of his ill state of health; but it is whispered that Sir Edward Hawke is on the point of throwing up his employments from another motive.

It is rumoured that the chancellor of the exchequer hath strongly disapproved of some of the Earl of Chatham's plans, relative to raising the funds for the service of the next year.

We are told, that the proposal (said to be the late great commoner's) to dissolve the present parliament at the next sessions, has already caused great heat, animosity and opposition amongst some of the noble and right hon. personages at the helm.

WEDNESDAY last arrived here His Majesty's packet boat the Hillsborough, commanded by Capt. William Adams, from Pensacola; and is to sail from hence for Falmouth, the fourth day of next month.

PETER DE LANCEY, Esq; who, upon Barj[illegible]min Barons, Esq's. soliciting leave to resign the office of His Majesty's D. Postmaster-General for the southern district of North-America, was appointed to succeed that gentleman; the hodourable MARTIN HOWARD, Esq; lately appointed Chief-Justice of the province of North-Carolina; the Rev. Mr. TUQUAND, &c. arrived here last Thursday, in the ship America, Capt. Coombes, from London.

Thursday last put into this port, entirely dismasted, without rudder or head, and otherwise damaged, the ship London Frigate, Thomas Jubber master, from Barbados, bound for London. Capt. Jubber left Barbados the 7th of September last, and on the 21st, in lat. 33, 40. N. long. 55, 30. W. from London, met with a most violent gale of wind, or hurricane, which continued eighteen hours, and put the ship in the condition she now is, with six feet water in her hold, shipp'd thro' the rudder port while she lay on her beam-ends, and water logg'd: In this condition, and in great want of water, capt. Jubber has beat about the seas ever since, till the 13th inst. when he had the good fortune, after many and great difficulties, to get in here: During the whole time, tho' he saw many vessels, he was unassisted by any, (they not choosing to be spoke with) except the Belfast-Packet, capt. Ash, who did speak with and spared him two casks of beef, and as many of bread.

On Friday also put in here, the sloop Kingbird, Capt. Hurlbert, from the Bay of Honduras, in great distress, having met with a violent storm on the 21st of October, in which she lost her bowsprit, most of her sails, one half of her starboard waste even to the deck, and a considerable quantity of mahogany on deck, and was drove to the lat. 26, in the Bay of Mexico.—On the 8th Instant, in lat. 26, and long. 80, he spoke with a French ship of about 300 tons, very leaky, from Leoganne, laden with sugars and coffee, bound for Old-France, which intended to make for this port, to refit.

Last Tuesday night died, Mr. William Watsone, lately arrived here from England, and son of the late Mr. John Watsone, of London, formerly of this place, merchant. And Yesterday Mr. Francis Clayton, of Wilmington, in North-Carolina, merchant, was married to Miss Polly Colcock, of this town.

 We have received a letter this week, sign'd A MASON, which enumerates and laments many of the difficulties the American colonies are, and must be, reduced to from the want of circulating cash, by the operation of the act of the 3d of his present majesty, for preventing further emissions of paper bills of credit; and points out a way of supplying the deficiency, with the advantages that may be derived from it, by the colonies making an offering of 350,000 pounds to the British treasury, per ann. on the principle of a parliamentary grant of 7 millions, to be issued from thence as a general American currency, in imitation of bank notes, to be let out upon mortgages of real estates at 5l. per cent. per annum: But we have not, at present, room for it.
